

Central Asian Platform 2020

Mongol Identity in Danger? Sociolinguistic Perspectives on Mongolia and Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region

The change of language policies in Inner Mongolia has lately sparked the interest of the international press. Scholars, NGOs and the general public in Inner Mongolia and abroad have expressed their concern for another case in the world of erasure of language rights and cultural and linguistic diversity. This discussion will focus on different sociolinguistic realities in Inner Mongolia and Mongolia. It will also focus on the power relationships between national and minoritized languages, dynamics of endangerment and assimilation, and the role of language in communities' self-perception.

SPEAKERS: Merle Schatz (Georg-August Universität, Göttingen)
 Elisabetta Ragagnin (Università Ca' Foscari, Venice)
 Veronika Zikmundová (Charles University, Prague)
 Veronika Kapišovská (Charles University, Prague)

TIME: October 14, 2020, at 2:00 PM
VENUE: Konírna Hall, Vila Lanna, V Sadech 1, Praha 6

Registration necessary for personal attendance. The event will be streamed, details will be announced shortly in advance at the Oriental Institute's website and media. Recording of the event will be made available later. For registration and queries, please contact Veronika Danešová at danesova@orient.cas.cz.

This Central Asian Platform event takes place with the support of the Czech Academy of Sciences' Lumina Quaeruntur Fellowship and Strategie AV21 program. It is organized in cooperation with Forum 2000 Conference as part of the Festival of Democracy 2020.