ORIENTAL INSTITUTE: A SHORT HISTORY*

The Oriental Institute originated basically due to two circumstances. Firstly, the young Czechoslovak Republic, following up the early interest of inhabitants of this region in the Orient, both near and far, felt the necessity of economic and cultural co-operation with Eastern countries. Secondly, the famous Czech traveller, Arabist Alois Musil, succeeded in winning over the President of the Czechoslovak Republic T. G. Masaryk, erstwhile student of the Arabic at the Oriental Academy in Vienna (Masaryk originally wanted to become a diplomat), for the idea of establishing some kind of Orientalist society "to foster cultural and economic relations with the Orient." Thus, essentially, the Oriental Institute owes its existence to the initiative of A. Musil and the moral and financial support of T. G. Masaryk.

President Masaryk in his letter to Chancellor P. Šámal dated 15 November 1921, concerning the distribution of money collected on the occasion of his 70th birthday, recommends, apart from establishing a Slavonic institute, designed to study Slavonic countries both from a scholarly and practical, particularly economic, point of view, to set up a similar institute for Oriental studies, serving the same purposes. It was the then Minister of Foreign Trade (later on President of the General Pension Fund) JUDr R. Hotowetz, who set about the task of putting the president's decision into effect and in concert with the Ministers of Foreign Affairs, Education, and Commerce, Industry and Trade, respectively, carried out all preparatory work.

The actual establishment of the Oriental Institute came about on 25 January 1922, when both chambers of the National Assembly passed the appropriate Act No. 27/1922, the implementation of which was entrusted to the Ministries of Foreign Affairs, Education and Trade. Thus the Ministry of Commerce earmarked half a million Crowns for setting up the library, the Ministry of Education allotted three million for purchasing the building, namely the Lobkowicz (Lobkovický) Palace at Malá Strana.

It took, however, some more time to build up the organisational structure of the Institute and to commence functioning, and thus it was only on 25 November 1927 that the President could nominate its first 34 Fellows. Their list comprised, from among the Czech, Slovak and German Orientalists resident in Czechoslovakia, e.g., J. Bakoš, A. Grohmann, B. Hrozný, V. Lesný, F. Lexa, A. Musil, O. Pertold, R. Růžička, and J. Rypka; in addition, geographers and travellers J. Daneš and J. Kořenský, as well as representatives of the entrepreneurial and financial circles, the Minister of Trade R. Hotowetz, Presidents of Živnostenská banka R. Pilát and Agrární banka K. Svoboda and others.

The constituting General Assembly of the members of the Oriental Institute took place on 1 March 1928. It passed the Statutes and decided on the organisational structure of the Institute, which was to consist of two sections, viz. research and economic (sanctioned by the General Assembly on 27 May 1929). The orientation on the economic sphere proved to be very profitable for the Institute. Its specialists monitored the economic conditions in various eastern countries and their relations with Czechoslovakia. As a result, the Institute was afforded considerable assistance in establishing and developing cultural relations, received scholarships for study in the Orient, etc. The Research Section concentrated above all on publishing books, holding scholarly lectures and organising language courses. Rudolf Hotowetz was elected first President of the Institute (1929–38), B. Hrozný became Vice-President and Z. Fafl Secretary.

Due to delays in reconstructing the Lobkowicz Palace, the Institute was obliged to operate from April 1929 till February 1930 in the Veletržní Palace. Only then it moved to the new premises on the first floor of the Lobkowicz Palace. It was also in 1929 that the first issue of Archiv orientální, a scholarly quarterly journal spreading the reputation of Czechoslovak Oriental studies first saw the light. The library of the Oriental Institute was officially inaugurated in May 1931.

The administration of the Institute was vested in the Board of Management headed by the President R. Hotowetz, with two Vice-Presidents and two Secretaries of the Research and Economic sections, respectively. In the Research Section, these offices were held by B. Hrozný and F. Lexa. In addition, there was a joint Committee elected by the two Sections and charged with the duty of making plans for training and educational work. Committee members in the Research Section were V. Lesný, J. Rypka, and M. Winternitz; deputies included J. Bakoš, O. Pertold, and F. Tauer. The first Research Section comprised a total of 17 Fellows (in addition to those mentioned above, there were, e.g., J. Černý, J. Dobiáš, A. Grohmann, O. Stein and others), 17 so-called "active" members (among others, V. Chytil, V. Kálalová-di Lotti, L. Matouš, E. St. Vráz, et alii) and 32 "corresponding" members (e.g., L. D. Barnett, A. Gardiner, H. Jacobi, T. Kowalski, S. Lévi, A. Meillet, E. Denison Ross, F. W. Thomas et al.). In subsequent years, the membership of the Research Section was increased by new, younger scholars many of whom were later to become prominent Orientalists, e.g., J. and M. Borecký, W. Gampert, J. Hloucha, K. Jahn, J. Klíma, P. Poucha, J. Průšek and others.

In 1938, the term of office of the first President of the Oriental Institute R. Hotowetz having expired, he was replaced by Bedřich Hrozný (1938–43). O. Pertold became chairman of the Cultural Section and V. Lesný its secretary. Shortly afterwards, however, the war broke out and the universities, chief platform of activities of the Institute's members, were closed. In 1943, the Oriental Institute was affiliated to the so-called Reinhard Heydrich-Stiftung and Adolf Grohmann was placed at its head (1943–45). In 1944, following several relocations, the Institute was shifted from the Lobkowicz Palace to cramped premises at No. 6, Humboldt (later Budečská) Street, where also its Library outlasted the war. The only permitted activity of the Oriental Institute at that time was teaching Oriental languages in much frequented evening courses (originally held in the seat of the Institute at Vlašská Street, later on in the Japanese Embassy building at Maltézské Square, temporarily also at Budečská Street in Vinohrady and finally in Neruda Gymnasium at Malá Strana).

After the war, following a decision of the Ministry of Education dated 18 May 1945, the Institute relocated to a vacated building of the convent of the Maltese Order at No. 4, Lázeňská Street at Praha 1 – Malá Strana. It was here that the memorable meeting of Orientalists, convened by the Revolutionary Committee of the Oriental Institute, was held on 28 May. At that meeting, J. Průšek, a leading representative of the new, dynamic generation of Orientalists, spelled out a new programme which meant an important watershed in the hitherto development of Czechoslovak Eastern studies, as well as a starting point of their further progress: the Institute was to acquire the character of a scholarly institution and to intensify its publication activities for the benefit of general public. Vincenc Lesný became the new Director (1945–52), the Economic Section was abolished, a popular-scientific monthly Nový Orient started to be published, former language courses were remodelled into an independent, broadly-based School of Oriental Languages, and the Institute gradually engaged some secondary-school professors, who, by their publication work, had already shown capacity for research in Orientalist disciplines.

The post-February 1948 Action-Group Committee wherein J. Průšek again played the leading role put through new Statutes of the Institute and from 31 March 1948 the administration devolved upon the Managing Committee headed by B. Hrozný, with J. Průšek as his Deputy. V. Lesný who enjoyed confidence of all staff-members continued in the office of Director. The process of changes culminated by the incorporation of the Oriental Institute into the newly founded Czechoslovak Academy of Sciences (CSAS) in 1952. It was only then that the foundation was laid for constituting the Institute as a fully-fledged research institution. In the same year Jaroslav Průšek became its new Director (1952–71).

In the years that followed, the Institute passed through a period of rapid development. Under the able guidance of Director Průšek, the existing branches of study continued to flourish, many new ones were established (e.g., African studies, Burmese, Caucasology, Dravidology, Indonesian, Korean, Mongolian, Philippinese, Siamese, Tibetan, Vietnamese studies, and others), a new Orientalist journal oriented abroad, New Orient Bimonthly, started to be published (1960–68), etc. Despite the fact that the ruling regime even then from time to time unduly interfered with scholarly research, the Institute had attained significant achievements, both individual and collective. The international political context (break-up of the world colonial system and emergence of numerous independent states in Asia and Africa) led to the gradual, and welcome, shift of the centre of gravity of research from classical disciplines to the study of modern languages, sociolinguistics, lexicography, research in modern history, literatures, and so forth. Ample material provision enabled frequent study or working stays of researchers abroad, as well as unprecedented growth of the Institute's libraries – General, Chinese Lu Xun's, Korean and Tibetan.

The tragic events in August 1968 and the subsequent disastrous so-called "normalisation" period (1969–89) had cruel consequences for Czechoslovak Oriental studies. A significant number of foremost Czech Orientalists emigrated abroad (e.g., M. Jelínková, M. Kalous, J. V. Neustupný, S. Segert, Z. Słupski, L. Zgusta, K. V. Zvelebil, and others) to assert themselves, successfully, in foreign universities and research institutions of the four continents. After the political purges in 1970, experts were dismissed (among others, J. Fass, O. Hulec, H. Knížková, V. Miltner, A. Palát, S. Pantůček, T. Pokora, et al.) and incompetent political protégés engaged in their stead. The remaining scholars were compelled into following a new, ideologically-based conception centred around "research of revolutionary processes in Asian and African countries", offensive fight with Maoism, study of problems of so-called Third World and international communist and labour movement. Another institutional product of the normalisation policy was the inorganic establishment of a Latin American department and ultimately of a department for the study of imperialism and the U.S.A. A newly formed department of Asian press and documentation was designed for the intractable Sinologists who were charged with the task of preparing weekly digests and translations from the Chinese press. Stewardship over such deformed Institute was entrusted to Václav Opluštíl (1971–73) and later on to Jaroslav Cesar (1973–90), both dutifully fulfilling the directives of higher party and academic bodies. But even under these oppressive circumstances a group of specialists found it possible to survive in the Institute and to proceed successfully with their research work. Thus even during this inglorious period in the Institute's history there appeared numerous valuable monographs, lexicographic works and above all translations from Oriental languages which helped to perpetuate awareness of Asian cultures among the general public.

It was only the “Velvet” revolution in November 1989 that put an end to the “normalisation” period in the Oriental Institute with all its concomitant wrongs and shortcomings. The Institute, above all, got rid of its Director Cesar and all such researchers who disqualified themselves by their lack of skills or productiveness. The Commission for Redressing Wrongs set up on 19 December 1989 appealed to former fellows of the Institute who were in the past hunted out or otherwise professionally harmed to resume, as far as possible, their careers in Oriental and African studies. Further it was necessary to prepare and put through a new conceptual framework of the Institute taking into account its considerably depleted staff and dwindling financial resources. In connection with the partition of the state the Institute was incorporated into a newly structured Academy of Sciences of the Czech Republic (ASCR, 1992).

The life of the Institute was severely affected by its eviction from its traditional seat at Lázeňská Street and subsequent relocation to the academic campus Mazanka in Praha 8 – Libeň. Running the organisation under the new dispensation was attended by comparatively frequent changes in its top management: the first post-November Director Zdeněk Müller (January 1990 – October 1991) was followed by Svetozár Pantůček (October 1991 – May 1993), Jana Pečirková (May 1993 – January 1994), and Petr Charvát (in charge, February – May 1994). From May 1994 to date the office of the Director of the Institute is held by Sinologist and Tibetologist Josef Kolmaš. The newly constituted Scientific Council of the Institute was presided by Z. Veselá (1990–91), J. Kolmaš (1992–94), and O. Hulec (1994–97).

In 1994 the Institute was donated a valuable Sinological library of an American Sinologist John King Fairbank, professor emeritus of Harvard University; in 1995 it passed successfully an evaluation procedure covering the period of 1990–95; in 1996 it became involved in several projects of the “Programme of Scholarly Research in Key Domains of Science Cultivated in the Academy of Science of the Czech Republic”; in 1997 its fellows elected a new Scientific Council of the 4th term (for the years 1997–2000, chairman L. Hřebíček); in the same year it received a magnificent donation of books from the Korea Foundation in Seoul for its Korean Library. In 2000, a new Scientific Council of the 5th term (2000–02) was elected (chairman P. Charvát).

Apart from the General Library and four other specialised libraries (see below), the secretariat and the economic management section, the Institute comprises three research departments, viz. Department of Africa and the Near East, Department of South Asia, and Department of East Asia. It goes on with publishing the quarterly journal Archiv orientální (1929–), monthly magazine Nový Orient (1945–), Archiv orientální – Supplementa series (1953–), monograph series Dissertationes orientales (1964–), Bibliographical Series of the Oriental Institute (1977–), Orientalia Bohemica – Opera Minora (2000–), etc. In addition to research activities, the Institute provides various services to the state administration and general public such as expert advice and consulting, translations, interpreting facilities, information service and lectures. Research fellows teach at the Philosophical Faculty, the Hussite Theological Faculty, the Pedagogical Faculty of Charles University in Prague, at the Philosophical Faculty and the Faculty of Natural Sciences of Masaryk University in Brno, at the Faculty of Humanities, West Bohemian University in Plzeň, at the State Language School in Prague and elsewhere. The Institute is also engaged in many international activities such as conferences, long-term exchanges, teaching, lecturing and publishing abroad.

At present, four scholars holding the highest academic degree of “Doctor of Sciences” (DrSc/DSc) are engaged in the OI, viz. (in the chronological order of its acquisition):

Josef Kolmaš (in the field of general history; awarded by the Czechoslovak Academy of Sciences, on 20 March 1991), Blahoslav Hruška (in the field of general history; awarded by the Czechoslovak Academy of Sciences, on 29 May 1991); Luděk Hřebíček (in the field of linguistics of concrete language groups; awarded by the Philosophical Faculty of Masaryk University, Brno, on 10 November 1992) and Petr Charvát (in the field of archaeology; awarded by the Academy of Sciences of the Czech Republic, on 21 March 1996).

Pedagogical degrees of "docent" (Associate Professor) have been acquired by:

Blahoslav Hruška (in the field of religious studies and theory of religion, at the Hussite Theological Faculty of Charles University, on 4 September 1995), Petr Charvát (in the field of Slavonic archaeology, at the Philosophical Faculty of Masaryk University, on 1 November 1995), Josef Kolmaš (in the field of cultural anthropology, at the Faculty of Natural Sciences of Masaryk University, on 1 February 1997) and Miloš Mendel (in the field of political science, at the Faculty of Social Studies of Masaryk University, 1 January 2000).

On the initiative of the management of the OI and its Scientific Council it was decided, starting from 1990, to put in eminent scholars for awards of medals, diplomas or memorial plaques by the Czechoslovak Academy of Sciences (since 1992 the Academy of Sciences of the Czech Republic), or by the Ministry of Education, Youth and Physical Training of the Czech Republic in consideration of their outstanding contributions to their respective fields. Among those honoured were the following Czech and Slovak Orientalists:

In 1991

– Lexicographic group of the Oriental Institute comprising Li Tai-chün Hejzlarová, D. Heroldová (posthumously), Z. Heřmanová (Head), P. Kratochvíl, Chang Ching-yü Rotterová, T'ang Yün-ling Rusková, D. Šejnohová, L. Zgusta was awarded the Prize of the CSAS for nine-volume Česko-čínský slovník [Czech-Chinese Dictionary], Praha 1974–84.

– Ivan Hrbek was awarded the František Palacký Memorial Silver Plaque of Merit for Promoting Social Sciences by the CSAS.

– Stanislav Segert was awarded the Josef Dobrovský Memorial Silver Plaque of Merit for Promoting Social Sciences by the CSAS.

– Ladislav Zgusta was awarded the Josef Dobrovský Memorial Gold Plaque of Merit for promoting Social Sciences by the CSAS.

In 1992

– The Editorial Board of the monthly periodical Nový Orient [New Orient] was awarded the Prize of the CSAS for the Popularisation of Science.

– Gabriel Altman was awarded the Josef Dobrovský Memorial Gold Plaque of Merit for Promoting Social Sciences by the CSAS.

- Timoteus Pokora was awarded (posthumously) the František Palacký Memorial Gold Plaque of Merit for promoting Social Sciences by the CSAS.
- Kamil V. Zvelebil was awarded the Josef Dobrovský Memorial Gold Plaque of Merit for Promoting Social Sciences by the CSAS.
- Jaroslav Průšek was awarded (posthumously) the Josef Hlávka Prize by the Josef, Marie and Zdeňka Hlávka Foundation.

In 1993

- Josef Kolmaš was awarded the František Palacký Memorial Gold Plaque of Merit for promoting Social Sciences by the ASCR.
- Vladimír Miltner was awarded the Josef Dobrovský Memorial Gold Plaque of Merit for Promoting Social Sciences by the ASCR.

In 1994

- Luděk Hřebíček was awarded the Prize of the ASCR for his work Text in Communication: Supra-Sentence Structures (Bochum 1992).
- Věnceslava Hrdličková was awarded the František Palacký Memorial Gold Plaque of Merit for Promoting Social Sciences by the ASCR.
- Moshe Yegar (former Ambassador of the State of Israel in the CR) was awarded the František Palacký Memorial Gold Plaque of Merit for promoting Social Sciences by the ASCR.

In 1996

- Petr Charvát was awarded the Prize of the Ministry of Education of the CR for his work Ancient Mesopotamia: Humankind's Long Journey into Civilisation (Prague 1993).

In 1997

- Milena Doleželová-Velingerová was awarded the Josef Dobrovský Memorial Gold Plaque of Merit for Promoting Social Sciences by the ASCR.
- Renata Svobodová received a diploma "For Devoted Services to the ASCR".

In 2000

- Jiří Prosecký heading a group of authors comprising B. Hruška, J. Heller, P. Charvát, N. Nováková, J. Pečírková, L. Pecha, V. Sadek, V. Souček (posthumously), and J. Součková were honoured by the Prize of the ASCR for their work Encyklopedie starověkého Předního východu [Encyclopedia of Ancient Near East], Praha 1999.
- Anna Kamelská received a diploma "For Devoted Services to the ASCR".

Since 1992 the Institute brings out a yearbook in English with full data about its present staff, activities, eminent visitors, memberships in national and international organisations, editorial boards etc., about research projects and grants, lectures, teaching and publication activities together with a detailed bibliography of book and journal publications by individual fellows of the Institute, including titles in press (also available on the Internet in a virtual form, see <http://www.orient.cas.cz>).

JOSEF KOLMAŠ

ORIENTAL INSTITUTE IN 2000

One of the main tasks of the OI in the year 2000 was to get ready for the evaluation of its research objectives and results in the period of 1995–1999 and no effort was spared for the successful fulfilment of this end. First of all, "Working Papers used for Evaluating Institutional Research Plans and Results of the OI" (90 pp.) have been prepared and submitted for consideration to four foreign opponents, viz. Prof. Dr Per Kvaerne (Norway), Dr Viera Pawliková-Vilhanová (Slovakia), Prof. Dr Johannes Renger (Germany), and Prof. Dr Zbigniew Słupski (Poland), who were asked to hand in their expert opinions. Finally, a so-called internal assessment attended by two authorized evaluators, Prof. Dr Miroslav Komárek (Chairman) and Prof. Dr Jan Bouzek (Vice-Chairman) took place on 17 May.

On the basis of reports received from foreign opponents and the results of the preliminary internal assessment, an on-the-spot evaluation participated by Prof. Komárek and, on behalf of the OI, its Director J. Kolmaš and Chairman of its Scientific Council P. Charvát, was held on the premises of the OI on 11 October.

The Branch Appraisal Commission for Evaluating Research Objectives and Results of Institutes of the ASCR in the Fields of Humanities and Social Sciences (chaired by Prof. Dr Jiří Pešek, PhD) adopted at its session on 8 December a position document which was submitted on 20 December to the Director of the OI.

A. From the formal point of view, the Commission adjudged the format and technical level of background materials submitted to it outstanding.

B. Having considered the scholarly content of overall design, research objectives, and results of the Institute, the Commission stated that

a) The subject matter and aims spelled in the statement of objectives were fully in consonance with the sphere of activity of the Institute as specified in its foundation charter, and correspond to the needs and trends of contemporary development of the field... Of great importance in the contemporary world context is the interest paid to Islam. Consistent with the design of the OI are also lexicographic activities as well as extensive popularising and translation work. Intensively developing is also co-operation of the OI with universities, as well as with institutions abroad.

b) The results achieved in the years 1995–1999 are persuasive, nay imposing, especially if we take into account the limited staff, the material situation of the OI and the amount of money it has at its disposal. It is obvious that under these circumstances the Institute could have achieved such results only through purposeful, devoted and self-denying work of all its members and its management.

c) The reports of foreign opponents concurred in the opinion that the scholarly output of the OI is comparable to that of similar institutions abroad and represents not a mean contribution to world Oriental studies. The Institute is therefore a research centre with good prospects and deserves support and encouragement.

d) The OI should be reinforced by enabling it to increase the number of trainees and postgraduate students, making it thereby possible to prepare the necessary numbers of prospective researchers. This would also alleviate the negative impact of the natural aging of the research collective.

e) It is necessary to increase the financial appropriation for the OI – approximately by 30 to 40 per cent (financially demanding research abroad, foreign travel, purchases of literature and materials; costliness of own publishing activities). The budget of the Institute is very underestimated.

Summary of the case and overall assessment

As composed today, the Oriental Institute of the ASCR has in its ranks a number of outstanding researchers of international stature, has good prospects and merits support. The Commission evaluated the results of the Institute and its line of research as very good – grade A.

Recommendation:

The Appraisal Commission recommends to concentrate on bettering the age structure of the Institute and to increase the share of research results published in scholarly journals abroad.

A. Chronicle of Events

In the months of October 1999 through January 2000 an exhibition was held in the Lu Xun Library featuring Chinese translations of literary works by Czech authors of the 19th – first half of the 20th centuries available in the collections of this library (V. Kiecová).

On 27 January, a festive function combined with a discussion was held in the Prague Club Malaché to release the book Transkripce čínštiny [Transcription of Chinese] (2 vols., Praha 1999) by fellows of the Department of East Asia H. Třísková and V. Liščák.

Inauguration of the rector of the Palacký University in Olomouc Prof. MUDr et PhDr Jana Mačáková and of five Deans of its Faculties on 1 February was attended, on behalf of the OI, by its Director J. Kolmaš.

In February, Lu Xun Library prepared another exhibition of books from its collections, this time devoted to Chinese translations of Classical literature (V. Kiecová).

A festive gathering in the Institute of Information Science (in whose premises the OI houses its General Library collections) on the occasion of the completion of the term of office of the hitherto Director Prof. RNDr Petr Hájek and the induction of Assoc. Prof. Jiří Wiedermann as his successor on 25 February was attended, on behalf of the OI, by its Director J. Kolmaš.

The same also represented the OI at a formal opening of Dům humanitních pracovišť [House of Research Centres in the Humanities] incorporating the Institute of Ethnology, Masaryk Institute, Institute for Classical Studies, Department of Languages and editorial offices of journals Tvar and Vesmír at Praha 1, Na Florenci, which took place on 29 February.

Following mandatory preliminaries, an election of the new Scientific Council of the OI for the term of office 2000–02 was held on 14 April. Elected were: J. Filipický, P. Charvát (chairman), M. Mendel (deputy chairman), L. Obuchová, H. Třísková (internal members); Dr D. Marková, Prof. Dr Jaroslav Oliverius, Prof. Dr Jaroslav Spunar and Prof. Dr Jaroslav Vacek (external members).

On 16 May a festive gathering was organised by the OI to celebrate 80th birth anniversary of former fellow of the OI, Sinologist-Linguist Assoc. Prof. Oldřich Švarný.

On behalf of the OI, Director J. Kolmaš attended the celebration on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the foundation of the neighbouring Institute of Information Science on 16 June.

A soirée to mark the life anniversaries of three former fellows of the OI and still active researchers Dr Jiří Bečka (85), Dr Miloslav Krása (80) and Dr Dušan Zbavitel (75) was organised on 25 October in the Náprstek Museum by Ľ. Obuchová, Editor-in-Chief of the quarterly journal Archiv orientální and chairperson of the Czech Oriental Society.

B. Labour Turnover and Staff Changes including Nominations to Functions

From 1 January to 30 June, the OI employed in its Department of Africa and the Near East, on a part-time basis, Ing. Mesfin Gedlu, PhD.

From 1 January to 30 April and again from 15 September to 31 December, V. Hříčková was employed as a temporary stand-in in the reprographic section.

With effect from 3 January, I. Heger took up his alternative (civil) military service of 18 months' duration in the Library of the OI.

Between 3 February and 31 May, V. Engelthaler was engaged as a relief clerk in the Library.

By its resolution dated 22 February, the Academy Council of the ASCR nominated J. Prosecký member of the Branch Appraisal Commission for Evaluating Research Objectives and Results of Institutes of ASCR in 1999–2001 in the Fields of Humanities and Social Sciences.

M. Mendel was elected member of the 9th Section of the Grant Agency of the ASCR (25 May).

The alternative 18-month-long military service of V. Bielický in the Library of the OI having terminated by 31 May, he was replaced, from 1 June, in the same position by I. Kubát.

A new collective agreement to be effective in the period between 1 June 2000 and 14 May 2002 was entered into with the management as proposed by the Labour Organisation of the OI.

On 15 June, the Department of South Asia was rejoined by its former fellow S. Vavroušková. (The Municipal Court in Prague by its judgment dated 28 April 2000 declared invalid the notice of dismissal given to S. Vavroušková on 15 February 1996. This is to amend the piece of information referring to the cause in question in the Annual Report Oriental Institute 1996, pp. 4–5.)

With effect from 1 August, J. Jiroušková and L. Pecha were appointed, respectively, Editor-in-Chief and Executive Editor of Nový Orient.

On 1 September, the management of the Korean Library of the OI (on the basis of a grant from the Korea Foundation to expire by 31 August 2001) was assumed by a young Koreanist J. Klubrtová.

On 1 October, I. Bokšťeflová and Z. Raková took up a three-months' engagement as relief clerks in the Library of the OI.

Following a request of the Czech Surveying and Cadastral Office for co-operation in its Nomenclative Commission dealing with codification of local names, the OI on 1 October delegated V. Liščák to become member thereof.

On 6 October, R. Heřman left for an 18-months' study stay in Japan.

B. Hruška was entrusted, on behalf of the OI, with the task of co-operating with the Historical Institute of the ASCR in the preparation of "Encyclopedia of Czech History" (13 October).

The Oriental Institute was or still is represented in the managing organs of the AS and/or Charles University; in the Academy Assembly of the ASCR, by J. Kolmaš (ex officio member) and B. Hruška (elected member), in the Council for Sciences of the ASCR, by P. Charvát and J. Kolmaš. Active in the Grant Agencies are P. Charvát (vice-president of the Supervisory Council of the GACR), V. Liščák, M. Mendel and J. Strnad (GAAS), and B. Hruška (GA of Charles University).

In general, fellows of the OI in the course of the year frequently co-operated with the mass media, appeared on TV and gave talks on the radio, delivered lectures at local and foreign universities, taught and organised language courses at different types of schools (see below, in appropriate sections of the yearbook).

With the creation of its own home page (<http://www.orient.cas.cz>) the Institute obtained a handy instrument for propagating its activities both at home and abroad. Located upon it is a scanned card catalogue listing titles acquired by the General Library, the Korean Library, and the Tibetan Library of the Oriental Institute. Titles acquired since 1992, including those kept in the John King Fairbank Library, are to be found in the consolidated electronic catalogue of the Academy Institute Libraries that can be searched according to various criteria using search engine EXCALIBUR; the catalogue is accessible through a link from the home page of the OI.

The publication of the present and all subsequent yearbooks on the Internet belongs to the same category of making our activities more visible.

As far as our financial situation allowed, we went on with equipping the Institute with necessary material and hardware and improving the working conditions.

C. Book Output

For the most significant publications produced by the fellows of the Institute in the course of 2000, see the following:

Library of the Oriental Institute

With its 197,000 volumes, the OI's library constitutes the second largest library among all the institutes of the Academy of Sciences. It consists of the so-called General Library, Chinese Lu Xun Library, Korean Library, Tibetan Library, and John King Fairbank Library. It offers publications pertaining to history, literatures, languages, religions, and cultures of the countries of Asia and Africa. It is open not only to OI fellows but also to other specialists, first and foremost teachers and university professors specialising in Oriental subjects.

The Library houses 2,700 periodical titles and at present it receives some 140 titles of mostly foreign journals annually. It cooperates with more than one hundred foreign institutions and its yearly book accessions amount to some 500–1,000 volumes. In this manner it provides a solid information base to all those interested in the complex problems of Asian and African countries. In 2000, its collections were enriched by 100 titles donated by the Fakultät für Ostasienwissenschaft of Ruhr-Universität in Bochum, and by more than 1,000 book volumes from a generous grant by the former fellow of the OI Adéla Křikavová and her husband Assoc. Prof. Rudolf Brepta. Total accessions in 2000 amounted to 1,100 book titles and complete volumes of periodicals.

Readers have at their disposal not only classic card catalogues but also a computer database under the programme CDS/ISIS of new library accessions (from 1991). The OI library is being integrated into the LINCA (Library Information Network of the Czech Academy of Sciences) programme, representing a component of the CASLIN (Czech and Slovak Library Information Network) programme. This aims at offering access to information resources by electronic means on a wide international scale. The catalogues of the General Orientalist Library and of Tibetan Library (Kanjur and Tanjur) are accessible on the Internet in a virtual form (see, <http://www.orient.cas.cz/>); new acquisitions from 1992–98 have been made available through the Library Information System of the Academy.

Users of the Library have access to reprographic services (xerocopying, photocopying and micro-filming of selected information sources).

The Chinese Lu Xun library houses a special collection of Chinese books. With its 67,000 volumes it constitutes the second largest library of the Institute. At present, visitors have at their disposal only classic card catalogues. A new quarterly bulletin "Acquisitions to the Chinese Lu Xun Library" is being published since March 1999. New acquisitions listed in the four issues of the bulletin in 2000 amount to almost 200 books.

As planned, since Spring 1999 the Korean Library started functioning in the newly furnished premises. It presently houses more than 3,500 volumes. Its yearly book accessions are not numerous, but thanks to two generous donations received in 1996 and 1997 from the Korea Foundation, its funds were considerably enriched by nearly 1,000 South Korean publications (before 1989, the book collections in the Korean Library were mostly of North Korean provenance). The new premises of the Korean Library also include study facilities.

The General Library of the Oriental Institute is located at Pod vodárenskou věží 2, Praha 8, the Chinese, Korean, Tibetan and John King Fairbank Libraries are located at Pod vodárenskou věží 4, Praha 8. All these Institute's libraries are open on Tuesdays and Thursdays between 9 and 12 a.m. and from 1 to 4 p.m.

INTERDISCIPLINARY RESEARCH GROUPS

Orientalia Bohemica.

Coordinator: P. Charvát.

In 2000, the long-term efforts of the group members culminated in the opening of a major international exhibition Europas Mitte um 1000 nach Christus. This exhibition, festively inaugurated on 19 August 2000 in Budapest, Hungary, is to be seen in most of the capitals of East-Central Europe, the last to host it being Prague, in the year 2002. The preparation of this exhibition represented both an occasion for making a balance of work done hitherto, and a challenge for our future research trajectories.

A major and long-term topic for debate within the group has been the problem of interdisciplinarity in the humanities. This was illuminated, i. a., by a session devoted to a case study of interpretations built on both archaeological and historical sources.

Religious trends in Asia

Coordinator: Ľ. Obuchová.

The group was formed in 1998 by researchers from different Czech Orientalist institutions. In 2000, they prepared two new collections of essays in the Czech language for the monograph series of the Czech Society for Eastern Studies (published in co-operation with Dar Ibn Rushd Publishing House). The first one under the title Svět živých a svět mrtvých [The World of the Living and the World of the Dead] comprises eighteen contributions. The second collection entitled Maska, kostým a lidové divadlo [The Mask, the Costume and the Folk Theatre] contains texts of lectures delivered by the group members at the High School of Applied Art, Praha, during the Summer term 1999/2000.

Critics' Response to Recent Publications by Fellows of the Oriental Institute

Ľubica Obuchová: Číňané 21. století. Dějiny – tradice – obchod [The Chinese of the 21st century. History – Traditions – Trade]. Academia, Praha 1999. 287 pp., colour photographs, ill., price 195 Kč.

Pro všechny, kteří se chystají do Číny a chtějí se před cestou seznámit se způsobem myšlení obyvatel této země, bude určitě zajímavý závěr knihy. V posledních dvou kapitolách se totiž seznámí s pohledem Číňanů na svět kolem nich, s čínským způsobem života a podívají se na postavení jednotlivce v čínské společnosti. Najdeme tady také hezký popis všedního dne, čínských oslav a svátků.

Co říci závěrem. Pokud Vás Čína láká, i když tam momentálně nejedete, knihu byste si přečíst měli. Svou kvalitou totiž vysoce převyšuje úroveň knih věnovaných různým zemím, které u nás vycházejí.

[Anybody bent on visiting China and wishing to familiarize oneself before departure with the way of thinking of the inhabitants of this country is sure to find interesting the concluding parts of the book. In the last two chapters he'll get acquainted with the view the Chinese take of the surrounding world, with their way of living and with the place of the individual in Chinese society. We find here also a nice description of everyday life, of Chinese celebrations and festivals.

In conclusion, we can only say that, should you feel attracted by China, this is the book for you to read, even if you do not intend to travel there just now. By its quality it greatly surpasses the standard of publications devoted to different countries being published here.]

Ľubica Obuchová: Čínské symboly [Chinese Symbols]. Grada Publishing, Praha 2000. 187 pp.

Práce Ľ. Obuchové potěší všechny zájemce o čínskou symboliku a číselnou mystiku, o věštění a geomantii, zodiak a s ním spojená mystická zvířata, o čínský kalendář, čínský dům, kuchyni atd. Autorka, která proslula svou úspěšnou populárně-vědeckou prací Číňané 21. století. Dějiny – tradice – obchod (Academia, Praha 1999), vydává krátce za sebou toto rozkošné dílko, plné poučení i podívání na desítky, ne-li stovky tradičních čínských obrázků a vystřihovánek, vždy náležitě vysvětlených a zasazených do patřičného kontextu.

[The work of Ľ. Obuchová is sure to please all those interested in Chinese symbolism and numeral mysticism, in vaticination and geomancy, the Zodiac and related mystical animals, Chinese calendar, Chinese house, kitchen, etc. The authoress, already renowned for her successful popularising book Číňané 21. století. Dějiny – tradice – obchod [The Chinese of the 21st century. History – Traditions – Trade]. (Academia, Praha 1999) has published, in short succession, this lovely volume full of insights and glimpses of scores if not hundreds of traditional Chinese pictures and cut-outs, always properly explained and set within appropriate contexts.]

Jednotlivé oblasti jsou fundovaně a přehledně zpracovány a celá publikace je bohatě ilustrována, což je u slovníku symbolů, kterým tato kniha v podstatě je, zajisté nutností. Jde o dílo obsažné, hutné a dobře napsané, které zaplňuje mezeru, jež u nás v této oblasti doposud zela.

[Individual parts are knowledgeably and lucidly treated and the whole publication is profusely illustrated, which is in a publication of this sort, essentially a dictionary of symbols, surely a must. The compendious, concise and well-written work fills a lacuna, which has been up to now felt in this field.]

Český překlad navíc obsahuje přílohy a dodatky Josefa Kolmaše. Tibetolog a sinolog Josef Kolmaš je znám svými precizními překlady a zejména pečlivě zpracovaným poznámkovým aparátem. Jeho dodatky a přílohy, zejména chronologie a tabulky obsahují jména králů, regentů, ministrů a dalších významných postav tibetské historie, jsou cenným zdrojem informací pro české čtenáře.

Tibetologist and Sinologist Josef Kolmaš is well-known for his precise translations and especially for meticulous care with which he prepares notes and references. His additions and supplements, notably the chronological tables and lists of kings, regents, ministers, and other important personages of Tibetan history are a valuable source of information for the Czech readers.]

Je třeba uvítat vydání této publikace, obsahující mnohé, dosud málo známé podrobnosti o vývoji Tibetu a současně je i nutno konstatovat, že jen díky záslužné práci překladatele a podrobným doplňkům a vysvětlivkám, které ke knize připojil, se podařilo tuto přece jen vzdálenou problematiku přiblížit i našemu čtenáři.

[We cannot but welcome the appearance of this publication containing numerous, so far less known details of Tibet's development and at the same time it is necessary to stress that it was only thanks to the meritorious labours of the translator and detailed additions and explanations appended by him to the volume that this still somewhat abstruse topic could be made accessible to our reader.]

Studie je, jak už je u tohoto autora zvykem, pravou encyklopedií poznatků o fenoménu „Hedvábná cesta“ – od jejího objevení, jejích předchůdkyň a dalšího vývoje v průběhu věků. Všimá si také těch, kdo po této cestě oběma směry kráčeli (kupř. Čang Čchien ze strany Číny, benátští Polové, Arabové a další do Číny), jaké zboží se po ní sváželo, jak se touto cestou šířil do Číny buddhismus, islám, nestoriánství, judaismus a křesťanství i které historické a současné národy obývaly a obývají podél trasy Hedvábné cesty.

[As is customary with this author, the present study is a veritable encyclopedia of knowledge about the “Silk Way” phenomenon – from its discovery, its predecessors and further development throughout the ages. It also takes note of those who trod this way in both directions (e.g. Zhang Qian from China, the Venetian Polos, Arabs and others to China), of the goods transported on it, the spread of Buddhism, Islam, Nestorianism, Judaism, Christianity by this route, and of the historical and contemporary nations living along the Silk Way.]

Miloš Mendel: Náboženství v boji o Palestinu. Judaismus, islám a křesťanství jako ideologie etnického konfliktu [Religion in the Struggle for Palestine. Judaism, Islam and Christianity as Ideologies of an Ethnical Conflict]. Atlantis, Brno 2000, 248 pp.

This monograph is a Czech contribution to the discussion about the role of religions in the contemporary Middle East. It offers a detailed analysis of the role of Judaism, Islam, and Christianity as religious ideologies as they affect the ethnical and political conflict over the historical territory of Palestine...

The first part, entitled “Doctrinal Preconditions of Ideologization of Politics”, is devoted to a general characterization of the basic doctrine of the three monotheistic religions – Judaism, Islam, and Christianity... In the second part, “Judaism in the Service of Politics”, the author presents a thorough analysis of the general features and different representatives of Judaic fundamentalism... In the third part, “Islamic Fundamentalism”, the author begins his analysis with the general characteristics of ideology and political praxis of Islamic fundamentalism. Special attention is given to the attitude towards Jews and Judaism... The fourth part, “Christian Zionism”, ... presents not only a very interesting survey of Orthodox, Catholic, and Protestant attitudes to Judaism and Israel but also a quite detailed study of extremist Christian organizations and ideologies...

Miloš Mendel’s monograph ... is a highly valuable contribution to the study of the role of monotheistic religions in Middle East politics. The serviceability of his work is further enhanced by the inclusion of a comprehensive bibliography, a thorough index, and very informative photographs.

Luděk Hřebíček: Lectures on Text Theory. Oriental Institute, Prague 1997, 191 pp.

Der Prager Linguist Luděk Hřebíček ... übertrifft an Originalität alles, was in der Sprach- und der Texttheorie seit längerem vorgeschlagen worden ist. Das zu besprechende Buch ist eine knappe, aber systematische Zusammenfassung und Weiterentwicklung seiner Entdeckungen, mit denen sich wahrscheinlich mehrere Generationen von Textanalytikern werden auseinandersetzen müssen. Eine ausführliche Behandlung einzelner Probleme findet man bereits in seinen früheren Büchern ... und in einer großen Anzahl von Aufsätzen, in denen von Euphonie über graphentheoretische Grammatik, mathematische Soziologie bis hin zu Fraktalen eine breite Palette von originellen Ideen enthalten ist...

Vielleicht der wichtigste Punkt in Hřebíčeks Philosophie ist die Betrachtung des Textes als eines komplexen Phänomens. War das Ideal der Wissenschaften bisher die notwendige Zerlegung des Forschungsgegenstandes in seine kleinsten Bestandteile, so stellt seit einiger Zeit die Erforschung der Komplexität ein neues Paradigma dar. Die Bildung komplexer Systeme ist Bedingung jeglicher Evolution, Resultat der Kreativität, der Selbstorganisation, der positiven Rückkopplung, der Entstehung von Attraktoren usw. Dies ist der Bereich der Emergenz oder, wie er vom Santa Fe Institute genannt wird, der Rand des Chaos... Nur wenige Linguisten haben bisher diesen Bereich betreten... Hřebíček ist wahrscheinlich der erste Linguist, der auch über der Rand geschaut und die Brutstätte der Muster im Chaos gesucht hat...

Alle Hypothesen des Buches sind geistvolle Neuerungen, die auf eine überraschende Weise miteinander verknüpft sind. Nichts hängt in der Luft, alles wird mit der Semantik des Textes in Verbindung gesetzt...

Das Buch hat etwas „Zipfisches“ an sich. Es ist voll von Entdeckungen, Vermutungen, Annahmen, Argumentationen und offenen Problemen, die gelöst werden sollen, es eröffnet, so wie es Zipfs Bücher taten, völlig neue Sichtweisen und Perspektiven, und vor allem schiebt es die Linguistik um einen großen Schritt näher an die moderne Forschung heran. Auch wenn das Buch nicht gerade einfach zu lesen ist, sollte es zur Pflichtlektüre für Textanalytiker erklärt werden.

Jana Pečirková: Asýrie – od městského státu k říši [Assyria – From the City State to Empire]. Academia, Praha 2000, 177 pp.

Die Vf. beschäftigte sich schon seit langem mit den Assyrern, stets mit regem Interesse für die Geschichtsschreibung im 1. Jt. v. Chr. und für methodologische Probleme der altorientalischen und antiken Historiographie. Ihr dünnes Buch stellt die erste tschechische Monographie über die politische Geschichte und soziale Struktur Assyriens dar. Der flüssig geschriebene Text verfolgt mehrere, in Tschechien bislang nicht angestrebte Ziele, darunter auch eine Zusammenfassung des heutigen Forschungsstandes mit offenen Fragestellungen und zahlreichen Vergleichen mit den entsprechenden staatlichen Institutionen im antiken Rom. Die Herausgeber im renommierten Academia-Verlag gingen davon aus, daß den tschechischen Studenten und Lehrern ein Hilfsmittel fehlt, welches sie unmittelbar an die Forschungslage heranzuführt. Das Resultat ist ein zusammenfassendes Werk, das sich an breiten Leserkreis wendet, zuverlässige Informationen liefert und eine Darstellung und Erörterung der Quellenlage bietet. Vorgestellt werden jeweils nur die wichtigsten Probleme, leider ohne erläuternde Anmerkungen... Vf. hat sich bemüht, ihr Darstellung so zu gestalten, daß auch der Nichtfachmann, etwa der „klassische“ Althistoriker, sie mit Gewinn zu eigenen Arbeiten zu nutzen vermag. Es handelt sich also bei vorliegendem Buch um ein einleitendes Arbeitsinstrument (siehe die knappe Einführung, S. 9–11)...

Pečirková befasst sich fast ausschließlich mit den offiziellen historischen und Verwaltungstexten und betont mit Recht, daß deren Aussagen ideologischen Beschränkungen unterliegen. Texte „literarischen und religiösen Inhalts“ werden zwar erwähnt, aber nicht näher behandelt...

Blahoslav Hruška, Archiv orientální 69 (2001), pp. 93–94.

Knížka směřuje k tomu, aby čtenář získal jiné povědomí o Asyřanech, než jaké mu poskytoval Starý zákon, antičtí autoři a starší (byť stále přežívající) představy badatelů. Snaží se přehodnotit zakořeněný mýtus o Asyřanech jako o výjimečně krutých válečnících, kteří jen bořili statky vytvořené jinými etniky a nemilosrdně zacházeli s podmaněnými obyvateli... Je jedinou českou vědecky fundovanou publikací o starověké Asýrii a stane se spolehlivým pramenem pro studenty historie a orientalistiky... Protože je napsána srozumitelně a mnohdy i s vtipem, jistě v ní najdou mnoho zajímavého i další čtenáři.

[The book aims at presenting the reader with a different picture of the Assyrians from that given by the Old Testament, Classical writers and outdated (though still surviving) views of researchers. It tries to reappraise the deeprooted myth about Assyrians as exceptionally cruel warriors, who only despoiled treasures created by other peoples and treated mercilessly subjugated inhabitants... It is the only scholarly publication on ancient Assyria in the Czech language and can serve as a reliable source for students of history and Oriental disciplines... Written in a comprehensible style and not infrequently with wit, it is sure to offer a lot of interesting insights to other readers as well.]
